Canelo Alvarez vs. Terence Crawford Predictions

USA TODAY Sports: Josh Peter picks Terence Crawford

Canelo is the bigger fighter. The stronger fighter. The more tested fighter. But Crawford's boxing IQ coupled with his skills are off the chart. Prediction: Crawford by decision.

ESPN: Amir Khan picks Crawford

Khan said, "It's a great fight for the fans. If it comes down to being a boxer and moving around, I got Crawford destroying Canelo easily. Canelo has to dig deep and go back to how he used to fight back in the day against the likes of Floyd Mayweather and those guys where he doesn't give a damn and walks through you. But it's a 50-50 fight. I lean toward Crawford. Why? Because Crawford is the fresher fighter. Canelo has had too many tough fights."

The Sun: Tyson Fury picks Canelo

Chisanga Malata writes on Tyson Fury's comments: "(It's a) very tough fight, different weight categories. What weight would this fight happen? I don't know. At 168, I'm gonna say Canelo. At 140, I'm gonna say Crawford. So I'll go with Canelo."

DAZN: Eddie Hearn picks Crawford

Christopher Walker writes on Eddie Hearn comments: "Crawford has got to fight a boring fight to beat him. He'll engage way more than Scull. I had the fight quite close. 115-113. Maybe 116-112, and that was Scull. Crawford is on another level than that."

Pro Boxing Fans: Benavidez picks Canelo

Jonathan Nagioff writes on David Benavidez comments: "I think Canelo's going to win, only because of the size. Crawford is coming up three weight classes, so I think Canelo is more of a natural super middleweight. This is Crawford's first super middleweight fight."

Ring Magazine: Dmitry Bivol believes Terence Crawford can win

In an interview with Ring Magazine, Bivol stated, "My first reaction when I heard about the fight was about Crawford's size. Is it appropriate for him to move up two weight classes? However, when I saw him in Dubai a month ago, I realized he is physically imposing and possesses excellent skills. He is one of my favorite boxers, and I believe he is capable of winning this fight."

Who is Terence Crawford? Everything to know about Canelo's opponent
It's unlikely Crawford (41-0, 31 KOs) will be scared to fight Alvarez, given the path he has taken from his hometown of Omaha, Nebraska, to this career-defining moment.

Growing up, Crawford has said, he put on boxing gloves, hit the streets and fought in alleys.

That is, unless his mother arranged fights on the front lawn when she offered neighborhood kids $10 if they could beat her son.

Just like now, Crawford was undefeated, the boxer has said.

Canelo Alvarez: Keys to victory
As Terence Crawford aims for an upset victory against Canelo Alvarez Sept. 13, special insight is available from the brains behind boxers who stood toe-to-toe with Alvarez.

One man is Abel Sanchez, who trained Gennadiy Golovkin for the electric first two fights of Golovkin's trilogy with Alvarez. The other is Joel Diaz, who coached Dmitry Bivol in 2022 when Bivol defeated Alvarez by unanimous decision.

Crawford is the faster boxer. The better-conditioned boxer. And draws praise for his smarts inside the ring.

But...

"In a 12-round fight with that big truck of Canelo just pounding and pounding, it's going to take its toll," Sanchez said.

Canelo Alvarez vs Terence Crawford payout, purse
It's a big fight with an even bigger paycheck.

Canelo Alvarez is guaranteed to make more than $100 million to fight Terence Crawford on Saturday, Sept. 13, said Turki Alalshikh, the Saudi matchmaker and deal broker who has led his country's massive investment in boxing.

One of the biggest deals Alalshikh made is a four-fight deal with Alvarez. And on Sept. 11, during the final press conference before the two boxers face off, he responded when asked if he would become the first person to guarantee a Mexican athlete $100 million.

Canelo vs Crawford weight: What does size say about fight?
Michael Spinks. Sugar Ray Leonard. Roy Jones Jr.

The history of those boxing legends provides reason to believe Terence Crawford can overcome what's viewed as his biggest challenge in fighting Canelo Alvarez on Saturday, Sept. 13.

That challenge is the jump up two weight classes that Crawford (41-0, 31 KOs) had to make to fight Canelo (63-2-2, 39 KOs) in the 168-pound super middleweight division, with Canelo's undisputed super middleweight title on the line.

Crawford jumped up from 147 pounds to 154 pounds in his last fight. Now he's leaping again, approximately 14 pounds, and headed into uncharted territory. By contrast, Alvarez is a natural 168-pounder and has fought twice at the 175-pound light weight division.

USA TODAY Sports' Josh Peter has more on the weight issue facing Terence Crawford vs. Canelo Alvarez.

Why is Canelo-Crawford on Netflix?

While this is not Netflix's first foray into boxing, the upcoming Canelo vs. Crawford fight is generating unprecedented buzz. Netflix made history by broadcasting the Jake Paul vs. Mike Tyson fight in November 2024, achieving 38 million concurrent streams in the U.S. to become the most streamed sporting event in history. It also streamed the women's boxing trilogy fight, Taylor vs. Serrano 3, in the summer of 2024. — Elizabeth Flores

With Canelo Alvarez's undisputed super middleweight title on the line, the Mexican star will be fighting more than Terence Crawford on Saturday, Sept. 13 in Las Vegas.

Canelo Alvarez record: Boxer fighting for his legacy
He'll also be fighting for his legacy.

Aris Pina, a voter for the International Boxing Hall of Famer, said he thinks Alvarez ranks among the Top 30 boxers all-time. Barry Tompkins, a highly regarded boxing analyst, said he thinks Alvarez is in contention for the mythical crown of best Mexican boxer ever.

The prevailing sentiment: Alvarez's legacy hinges in part on the outcome of his fight against Crawford, who like Alvarez, has spent time atop the pound-for-pound rankings. Alvarez is 63-2-2 with 39 knockouts.

"His record speaks for itself," Tompkins said. "And to his credit, he's fought everyone who's come along."
